Dr. Bonita Chamberlain (degrees in anthropology from SDSU and a doctorate from the Universidad de los Andes, Bogotá, Columbia, taught at Thunderbird School of Global Management) was working in Switzerland on assignments to assist Middle Eastern countries in development projects during the 1970s. After completing projects in Turkey and then in Iraq, she took off time to spend 4 months traveling with one of the nomadic tribes in Afghanistan. She has returned annually to Afghanistan for 25 years, and in 2002 created an income-generating jewelry mining / designing project providing jobs for women and men. This project generated $850,000 for humanitarian projects in Nuristan, Afghanistan.
